

Times New Roman get its name from the Times of London, a British newspaper. In 1929, the Times hired typographer, Stanely Morison of Motoype, a British font foundry, to create a new text font.

T Z R

Used in a daily newspaper, the new font quickly became popular among printers of the day. In the decades since, typesetting devices have envolved, Times New Roman has always been one of the first fonts available for each new device.